The Rubbercon 2026 international conference will be held in Paris on April 28th and 29th. This annual event, held alternately in different countries, is coordinated by the national member societies of IRCO (International Rubber Conference Organization).

In 2026, the conference will be organized by AFICEP, the French rubber scientific association, under the aegis of IRCO.

The main theme of this year's event will be “Ecodesign and Rubber Innovation”.

Some 300 participants from Europe and other continents are expected to attend.

Over the 2 days, speakers from a wide range of fields - academic and scientific research, technical centers, manufacturers of raw materials and equipment, distributors, elastomer converters, contractors, users and public authorities - will report on the progress of their work and innovations, from materials improvement to product applications, equipment and services, energy efficiency and environmental progress, and future trends and challenges.

The gala dinner will be held on the Seine as a reminder of the opening ceremony of the 2024 Olympic Games.

Finally, Rubbercon 2026 Paris will be the only major rubber and elastomer event in Europe in 2026. So don't hesitate to become a sponsor: AFICEP offers a range of sponsorship packages (see in the following pages).

We look forward to welcoming your company to make this RubberCon 2026 Paris a great success for you and for us!

What is RubberCon?

RubberCon is an international conference dedicated to the rubber industry. Organized by the International Rubber Conference Organisation (IRCO), RubberCon brings together professionals, researchers, scientists, and stakeholders to discuss the latest advancements, trends, and challenges in rubber technology, materials science, and manufacturing.

Topics covered range from innovations in rubber processing, sustainable practices, and material improvements to applications in various sectors such as automotive, aerospace, medical, and consumer goods.

The event usually includes technical presentations, panel discussions, exhibitions, and networking opportunities. RubberCon is held in different countries each year, hosted by national rubber societies that are members of IRCO, which helps bring a global perspective to local issues and innovations in the rubber industry.
